April a month unlike any other

Commissaries, Exchanges spotlight Month of the Military Child

To help celebrate April as the Month of the Military Child, commissaries are joining exchanges and other on-post resale outlets in offering a variety of giveaways and savings for the entire family.

"Children in military households face unique challenges because of the demands of military life," said Tracie Russ, DeCA's sales director. "So we want to acknowledge them and do all we can to provide their families with great values for their commissary benefit."

For Month of the Military Child, commissaries will promote the importance of healthier lifestyles using the "5-2-1-0" message, which is: Eat five fruits and vegetables every day; limit recreational screen time to two hours or less daily; get one or more hours of physical activity every day, and avoid drinks with sugar

Commissaries worldwide are also planning "Thank You for Your Service Sidewalk Sales" during April 16 through May 31, and many will partner with their local Exchange.

On-post resale outlets maximizing partnership opportunities

More commissary/exchange joint sales coming

Service members and their families will see more joint sales promotions for commissaries and exchanges that highlight the savings and value of shopping on military installations.

Starting in April, with promotions linked to the Month of the Military Child, on-post resale outlets will maximize partnership opportunities outlined during a recent marketing conference hosted by the Defense Commissary Agency.

"There's a huge symbiotic relationship with the exchange and the commissary," said retired Rear Adm. Robert J. Bianchi, DeCA's interim director and CEO.

He said the goal is to let service members know the value of shopping on the installation. Read the story.
