Commissary/Exchange joint sales coming

Commissary and exchange shoppers will see more opportunities to save on the installation as military resale officials continue planning more joint sales.

Exchange and commissary marketing experts met in February to set out a course for more cooperative sales events. The marketing conference came less than two weeks after the military resale chief executive officers signed a joint purchasing alliance agreement to maximize resale's combined buying power for items sold by two or more of the organizations.

During their meeting, the military resale marketers addresses several actions to bolster patron shopper opportunities including finalizing a 2019 joint promotional calendar for major events. To learn more about what they did, see our news release.
